HAWAII'S HAIRCUTS

How the Art Was Prac- ticed in Old Times.

Hair-cutting in Hawaii in ancient times was as much an art as nowadays.
The methods and instruments, however, have undergone many modifications since the time when the earliest Hawaiian barbers were probably looked upon as tonsorial artists, and perhaps, torturers. It was not the custom of the men, before the coming of the whites, to permit the hair to grow in barbaric abandon. There were styles in the cut of the hair in those days, and any man, who wished to appear to advantage before the women folks, kept in close communion with the modes.

In those days iron and steel, and in fact, any kind of metal, were unheard of in Hawaii, and the wonder is that the barbers succeeded at all in their profession. First of all the native barber went out to sea and killed a shark. He then extracted the molars of the selachian, selected the best one, tied it to a piece of wood, made some show of putting an edge upon it, and then went to work. This was termed the "hair-cutting tooth" (niho ako lauoho). The candidate squatted on the ground, generally close to a tree, and the barber gathered up a handful of hair, doubled it over the shark's tooth, pushed the instrument forward quickly, and the sheaf of hair was severed. Thus the operation went on.
But no barber of ancient Hawaii put out a sign "Painless Hair-Cutting," for the operation was attended with a degree of pain which caused the candidate, strong man as he was in those days, to shrink under the torture. The cause for the proximity of the tree is obvious—it gave the owner of the hair a gripping place for his hands.

Those who failed to take pleasure in a hair-cut of this sort, had an alternative. They applied fire to their hair, which was protected in such a way that it burned a limited amount.

When the barber finished his task, he supplied the customer with a looking glass. This was generally a slab of wood which had been thoroughly polished and blackened with a dye, then blackened with mud, then dipped in water, dried and again polished. When wet again the holder could discern his image faintly, but sufficiently to determine whether or not the cut of his hair was satisfactory.

A BALD NEWSPAPER MAN.

Getting a New Crop of Hair, and Has
No More Dandruff.

Everybody in the Northwest knows Col. Daniel Searies, the veteran journalist and publisher of Butte, Jan. 10, 1900, the Colonel writes: "I used a couple of bottles of Newbro's Herpicide with marvelous results. The dandruff disappeared; a new crop of hair has taken root, and the bald spot is rapidly being covered." Herpicide is the only hair preparation that kills the dandruff germ that digs up the scalp in scales as it burrows its ways to the root of the hair, where it destroys the vitality of the hair, causing the hair to fall out. Kill the dandruff germ, with Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists.

SWARMING TO SCHOOL

An Unprecedented Crush of Applicants for Admission.

Never before has there been so large an attendance at the public schools of Honolulu, on the first two days of a term, as the incomplete returns of the present opening show. Where exact figures have not reached the Education office, reports of children turned away for want of room have been received instead.

At Kaahumanu school (Beretania street) there were 606 pupils in attendance yesterday morning, with more than a hundred applicants for admission besides. No effort to accommodate these will be spared. There are twelve rooms in the main building, with desks for forty pupils to a room, which gives normal accommodation for 480, and there is a cottage on the grounds in which sixty may be comfortably placed. Thus, with the number already admitted, the ordinary capacity of the school is seen to be overtaxed by sixty-six pupils.

Figures have not been sent in from the High School, but Professor Scott says the attendance is larger than ever before and not all of the applicants for admission can be accommodated.

Kaakopua, the primary of the High school group, was crowded yesterday, pupils being refused all day. Kaulani school at Palama had an attendance of 585 pupils.

The Royal school, from which reports are lacking, is housed in a temporary building of six rooms, constructed of the material of the Aala warehouse where it lately kept, and in old cottages containing eight schoolrooms. It is presumed that this time-honored institution will not contain all the children seeking entrance to it.

There is a loan appropriation of $40,000 for a new Royal school house, but when the money will be available depends entirely upon the floating of the Territorial bonds.

Besides the unprecedented swarming to school which has already taken place, large accessions are expected within the first few weeks of children returning tardily from visits to friends on the other islands.

The condition of crowding the schools described here partially is a marvel to the educational authorities, after all that has been published about the exodus from the Territory of Portuguese exiles and working people generally.
They cannot believe that the juvenile population, at all events, is decreas-ing.

A MISNOMER.

A very pompous woman attempted to leave a car while it was in motion, and the little conductor stopped her with the usual—

"Wait until the c-a-a-r stops, lady!"

"Don't address me as 'lady,' sir!" she said haughtily.

"If beg your pardon, ma'am, but we are all liable to mek mistakes," was the immediate reply.—July Lippincott's.

KNEW HELEN BREWER'S MASTER.

Captain Johnson of the bark W. B. Flint, one of the oldest captains on the Pacific Coast, who has sailed to this port off and on since 1857, is one of those who do not believe that the missing bark Helen Brewer will ever tie up in dock again. Her master sailed with him as mate for six years from 1881-1887 when Captain Johnson gave him his first command from Manila. Others who knew the man and the boat still hope for her arrival at Delaware Breakwater but Captain Johnson out of the sapience of half a century on deep waters with intimate knowledge of the man and an acquaintanceship with the ship, shakes his head gravely but wisely.

"The captain had his wife aboard," said he last night, "which perhaps is after all the best. He leaves a boy of 22 behind him. It was the first long voyage he had taken in the bark and she was a cranky craft at that. She'll never dock again."

SCHOONER MARSTON ARRIVES.

The American five-masted schooner, W. H. Marston, Captain Curtis, Brewer and Co. agents, 1110 tons register, arrived in port from San Francisco yesterday afternoon between four and five o'clock. She brings some 2000 tons of general merchandise and made an uneventful good trip in sixteen days, ending at eleven o'clock yesterday. This is Captain Curtis' ninth voyage to Honolulu. The Marston lies at Brewer's wharf.

She brought as passengers, James Robertson, of Brewer and Co., and Mr. and Mrs. Barton, of San Francisco. Mr. Barton comes as organist of the Catholic cathedral.

JUTEOPOLIS SAVES INSURANCE.

By reporting at Honolulu, Captain Curd of the Juteopolis probably saved considerable reinsurance for his owners besides provisioning up for his trip around the Horn. The cable from here would promptly stop another Helen Brewer gamble, though the odds would have been in favor of the Juteopolis.

KOREA AND THOMAS.

The P. M. S. S. Korea with a crowded passenger list from San Francisco was expected off port at five this morning. The transport Thomas is due today, the cable from the department naming "about Tuesday" as her date of arrival. She left September 1.

CRICKETERS GET TWO GAMES

Local cricket was given an impetus with two matches played at Makiki on Saturday and Monday afternoons. Saturday's match was between Scotland and the Rest of the World, the first encounter having taken place on July 25 when the laddies made made 224 for seven wickets against the Worlds' 50 for a full innings. The World won the toss and elected to bat with nine players. The fall of their last wicket saw the score at 71. Scotland only pegged 59, ten playing. The full score was as follows:

On Monday J. C. McGill and R. Anderson tossed for choice of sides fourteen men being present. On the first innings McGill's men won by a scant margin of four, the total score being 61. In the second innings Anderson's seven hit up 83 and McGill played out to time for 41 with two wickets down.
